8:45 am	KEYNOTE: Academic Freedom from a Tribal Perspective	Frank Ettawageshik, Executive Director, United Tribes of Michigan	Colleges and universities cherish the concept of academic freedom. Most, if not all, have policy statements assuring faculty, specifically, have academic freedom and intellectual property rights. This presenter challenges this concept as it is described in a Euro-American worldview in which knowledge, i.e., intellectual property and the academic freedom to share this knowledge is an individualized concept where knowledge is owned by an individual. Examining this from a Native perspective is critical as knowledge is gained through sharing wisdom and experience with others including other human beings and all other life forms.
9:45am	Continuing Education Credits: What, When, How, and Why?	Katherine Campbell, EdD, Program Analyst, BIE Carrie Billy, JD, CEO & President, AIHEC	The definition of a CEU is shared with guidelines and examples of documentation necessary to implement and process units of instruction for funding through the Bureau of Education.
